

Vyaktigat Vikas Shibir Report

Shri Kashtabhanjan Dev Hanumanji Mandir, Sarangpur
Organized under Shri Swaminarayan Mandir, Vadtal

1. Executive Overview

A two-day intensive Personal Development Workshop (Vyaktigat Vikas Shibir) was successfully conducted at Shri Kashtabhanjan Dev Hanumanji Mandir, Sarangpur. The program focused on developing disciplined, value-based, and spiritually grounded leadership among temple sevaks. Approximately 300 sevaks from various departments participated in the training.

Although initially planned as a three-day program, the complete module was effectively delivered within two days due to structured facilitation, disciplined participation, and focused engagement.

2. Spiritual Blessings and Institutional Support

The workshop was blessed by Pujya Shastri Hari Prakash Dasji Swami (Temple Administrator) and Pujya Vivekswamiji (Kothari of the Temple). Their divine guidance added spiritual depth and institutional significance to the program.

The training was conducted collaboratively by Dr. Chetankumar Patel and Parshadvarya Shree Shamjibhagatji (SGVP), combining structured leadership methodology with spiritual insight.

3. Core Learning Modules

- Body Language and Discipline: Posture, communication tone, respectful interaction, and non-verbal behavior.
- Manager vs Leader: Moving from authority-based control to inspiration-based leadership.
- Comfort Zone to Growth Zone: Encouraging sevaks to move beyond fear toward learning and development.
- Good Follower to Leader Journey: Understanding responsibility before authority.
- Faith in Hanumanji: Building courage, humility, and seva-bhav as foundations of leadership.
- This is not Work, This is Seva: Transforming mindset from employment to sacred responsibility.

4. Experiential Learning Activities

To ensure engagement and behavioral transformation, practical activities were conducted:

- Balloon Coordination Walk: Strengthening teamwork, balance, coordination, and non-verbal communication.
- Blindfold Zig-Zag Navigation: Building trust, clarity of instructions, and leadership responsibility.

These experiential methods ensured that learning moved beyond theory and entered behavioral practice.

5. Learning & Development (L&D) Perspective

From a Learning and Development perspective, this workshop was designed using a blended methodology that included conceptual clarity, reflective questioning, experiential activities, and spiritual anchoring.

The program demonstrated that structured L&D interventions can be successfully adapted within spiritual institutions without compromising traditional values. The integration of behavioral science principles with devotional culture resulted in high engagement and sustainable impact.

This model can be replicated across temples and faith-based organizations to build disciplined seva culture, improve communication standards, and develop internal leadership pipelines.

6. Participation and Cultural Impact

Around 300 sevaks participated across batches. The overall response reflected attentiveness, discipline, self-reflection, and willingness to improve communication and leadership behavior.

The workshop reinforced a powerful institutional message: Seva is devotion in action. Leadership within temple ecosystems requires humility, discipline, and collective growth.

7. Seva-Based Contribution

This workshop was conducted purely as seva. No professional fees were charged, and even transportation expenses were not claimed. The initiative was offered as a contribution toward strengthening the temple's seva culture and institutional development.

8. Future Scope and Replication Potential

The successful execution of this workshop establishes a scalable model for structured L&D interventions within temple environments. Similar workshops can be designed for different categories of sevaks, supervisors, and administrative leaders.

The program structure is adaptable for other temples and faith-based institutions seeking to enhance discipline, teamwork, communication, and leadership rooted in spiritual values.

Conclusion

The Vyaktigat Vikas Shibir at Sarangpur was not merely a training program but a foundational step toward institutional culture building. By integrating leadership principles with spiritual grounding, the initiative created meaningful behavioral reflection and practical transformation.
